Jan Beger is Global Head of AI Advocacy at GE HealthCare and Executive Director of HelloAI, where he helps healthcare professionals turn AI from theory into practical clinical impact. With more than 20 years of experience in healthcare informatics, medical imaging, and AI, he focuses on the real challenge of healthcare AI: not the algorithms, but trust, workflow, adoption, and patient benefit.

Jan is known for translating complex AI developments into clear, actionable insights for clinicians and health system leaders. He reaches more than 89,000 healthcare professionals through his LinkedIn research summaries and 44,000 newsletter readers each month, helping audiences understand which AI advances actually matter in practice.

He is also the founder of Edison Accelerator, a collaboration platform connecting providers, startups, and industry leaders to accelerate AI adoption in healthcare, and GR4AI, a non-profit book project designed to help children better understand artificial intelligence and how it shapes the world around them.

On stage, Jan speaks about how AI can support clinicians, improve workflows, and make healthcare more human while helping organizations move from AI hype to real-world implementation.
